2021-2022 PROSPECTUS

WHILE THE AMERICAN PEOPLE ARE TURNING toward the media for news and information, conservative and libertarian perspectives, sources, and stories are often manipulated, caricatured, or cancelled. A major problem is the lack of quality, right-of-center talent.

Americans need journalists who will tell the truth.

FUN FACT:

Nearly three-fourths – 74 percent – of our fellowship alumni have remained in media careers. From 2014 to today, 60 percent continue to work as journalists and another 14 percent work in a related media field, such as book publishing and speechwriting.

MISSION + KEY PROGRAMS

FOUNDED IN 2010, THE STUDENT FREE PRESS ASSOCIATION STRIVES TO TELL STORIES, SPOT TALENT, AND BUILD CAREERS IN JOURNALISM.

We bear witness to the ongoing scandal of political correctness, assaults on free speech, and left-wing orthodoxy at America's colleges and universities and within the mainstream media through our original, student-driven journalism.

The College Fix website—www.thecollegefix.com—is the nation's leading conservative campus newswire. The site has built up a loyal readership for its original, student-reported content on higher education controversies—stories that would have received little or no attention absent of our coverage.

We find and support the next generation of outstanding journalists. We mentor them through our work with The College Fix and also offer fellowships to our most promising journalists, helping launch their professional careers.

During their fellowship, professional editors work with fellows to hone their skills, help them explore career options, and connect them to additional media opportunities during and after their fellowships.

2020-2021 FELLOW RECAP

Our fellowship alumni can now be found at The Wall Street Journal, the Washington Free Beacon, Washington Examiner, Washington Times, Fox News, the Associated Press, among other publications and websites. With their remarkable success, our fellowship alumni are shaping the future of professional journalism.

In 11 years, we have sponsored more than 100 fellowships, 8 of them in 2020 and 12 in 2021 alone—our largest group yet.

EVENTS

EXPANDING EXCLUSIVE TRAINING OPPORTUNITIES

The College Fix is proud to be hosting exclusive educational opportunities for our journalism family!

In partnership with National Review Institute, we hosted our first online zoom event on Feb. 9, 2021 featuring National Review reporter John McCormack.

On September 20, 2021 about two dozen student journalists also attended our online training with scholar and best-selling author Heather Mac Donald, who taught them about writing well and tackling important yet controversial subjects.

Our goal is to continue to host quarterly online training sessions so student journalists can learn from the best of the best.

ANNUAL GALA

At The College Fix's 2021 gala, we hosted 60 attendees including students, partners, donors, and professional journalists. Our keynote speaker was Andrew Klavan of Daily Wire.

Just heard an amazing speech by @andrewklavan about preparing for a career in journalism at a time of profound media corruption. At @CollegeFix dinner. I hope he publishes it!

CANCEL CULTURE DATABASE

Cancel culture continues to grow and shows no sign of stopping. It represents an illiberal assault against freedom of speech and association as well as faith, academic discourse, open inquiry, the arts, unpopular or controversial ideas, and much more.

Our interactive database chronicles and quantifies cancel culture's influence on higher education, tracking its targets and noting its successes and failures. It will also serve as a vetted, crowdsourced repository that continues to track the problem of cancel culture in higher education.

THE DATABASE WAS LAUNCHED IN THE FALL OF 2021 WITH MORE THAN 1,400 ENTRIES.

*It is incredibly gratifying to mentor young college students and teach them the skills they need to become successful reporters and help this nation with fearless truth-telling. As I mark a decade with The College Fix and Student Free Press Association, I am so grateful for the support that has been given to tackle our important mission, and I look forward to many more years to come.*

The Washington Times

College Fix editor puts student journalists on front line of fight for free speech

“The left may clamp down on conservative speech on campus, and liberal views may dominate most newsrooms, but Jennifer Kabbany is fighting to change that, one news article at a time. From her perch as editor of The College Fix, a blend of online newspaper and college newswire, Ms. Kabbany sees her student journalists as the front line in the fight for the future of free speech.”- James Varney, The Washington Times, Sunday, January 12, 2021

SOCIAL MEDIA + DIGITAL OUTREACH

In the last year, our weekly newsletter grew by over 40% to reach more than 14,500 subscribers. Our articles were circulated by more than 4,000 different websites and news outlets.

The College Fix also massively expanded its social media presence on alternative platforms and launched in 2021 profiles on: Telegram, MeWe, Rumble, Parler, Minds, and Gab.

RECENT ALUMNI SUCCESS STORIES

In 2021, we are proud to have helped launched these successful media careers.

JOHN LOFTUS

The College Fix launched my career. Without its journalism fellowship, I would not be where I am today, doing what I love.”

John Loftus was a fall 2020 College Fix fellow at National Review. He is an associate editor at the Daily Caller. He is a graduate of Chapman University.

MARIA LENCKI

I started writing for The College Fix three years ago after another student at my school referred me. That referral really changed my life and allowed me to gain experience in journalism, which led me to intern at the White House and most recently accept a job at Fox News. Words cannot express how much my time at The Fix has meant to me and it would be the greatest joy to introduce another student to this incredible organization”.

Maria Lencki is a Digital Production Assistant with Fox News. She is a graduate of Franciscan University of Stubenville.

BRITTANY SLAUGHTER

The College Fix not only gave me my start in reporting, but showed me how to be an ethical and determined reporter. Their team of editors mentored me and shaped me into the journalist and person I am today. The Fix was a dream to work for and I am so thankful I had the opportunity to be trained by such skilled and kind veteran journalists.”

Brittany Slaughter is a reporter and anchor at WAOW TV, an ABC affiliate in Wisconsin. As a summer 2019 College Fix fellow, she worked at The Hill.

FUN FACT :

In addition to our fellowship program, many students who simply report for The College Fix over the years as campus journalists continue to see massive success in the industry.

Our “Where Are They Now” alumni section features two dozen former College Fix journalists who now enjoy careers at outlets such as Fox News, American Spectator, Epoch Times, Washington Examiner, The Wall Street Journal, CNN and many other venues.

WHAT'S NEXT

Behind The College Fix and all of its activities is the Student Free Press Association, a nonprofit organization—and it needs your help as we expose outrageous examples of left-wing bias on America's campuses and strive to improve the quality of our media.

When you support the Student Free Press Association, you help to:

1. Identify and recruit up-and-coming campus leaders who are interested in journalism and show promise and potential.
2. Mentor and develop budding journalists, helping them produce original reporting on campus controversies.
3. Publish original, student-driven content on The College Fix, our well-respected campus news powerhouse that publishes about 2,000 pieces per year.
4. Place the most promising student journalists into fellowships at leading media outlets, including USA Today, The Hill, Daily Caller, Reason, the Washington Examiner, The Weekly Standard, and RealClearPolitics.
5. Promote the work of budding journalists with websites and media groups such as National Review and Fox News, which can secure an audience of tens of millions.
6. Challenge biased university administrators and academics and expose campus radicalism, bringing balance to conventional media narratives and giving alternative ideas and voices a chance to be heard.

We invite you to join us in these efforts by following The College Fix, getting to know our talented young journalists, and becoming a financial supporter of our work.

WITHIN FIVE YEARS,

we see SFPA as the undisputed, premier college journalism organization in America. This will entail breaking stories at a constant, high-volume pace and leveraging the latest platforms and technology (video, social, web, and more) to disseminate content and engage with new and growing audiences.

As an organization, we are committed to building on our recent growth in social media following and web traffic to grow the reach of the stories we produce, expand our readership, and increase the professional development opportunities we can provide to our student journalists. Our advancement plans include tracking and connecting with our alumni, growing our staff in strategic and sustainable ways, and increasing the number of students we mentor and help launch into professional journalism.

Thanks to The College Fix, I have been able to strengthen my skills as a journalist, learn the best way to pursue a story and even successfully landed a job at The Washington Examiner. My editor at The Fix (Matt Lamb) has been incredibly helpful to me in seeing what I do well in an article and what I need to improve on. I can say without a doubt that The College Fix is one of the best experiences I've had as a writer, and I would highly recommend anyone interested in writing ought to write under them.
